'''Indefinite extended confirmed protection:''' Persistent [[Wikipedia:Disruptive editing|disruptive editing]]&nbsp;- This page has seen extensive disruptive editing and edit-warring, with a substantial number of edits made by random IP users. The nature of this page also seems to be sensitive due to the subject (Pakistan)'s ongoing territorial dispute with India over Kashmir, due to which there is obvious tug-of-warring from both Indian and Pakistani nationalists on its administrative divisions article; this page has been protected once before, although the period was temporary and the article remains unprotected. I would normally request temporary protection but I believe until the issue of Kashmir is solved, that this page will, without a doubt, be stuck in the same cycle.

:Was going to request the same. The article was relatively stable before it was targeted by sock IPs of a chronic [[User talk:Uanfala#Zeeshan Mehood|LTA]], [[User:Zeshan Mahmood|Zeshan Mahmood]] (also asking for a ban on the '''92.40.172.0/23''' range which is being used to sock). :~ Apologized at the article reads poorly. The subject was 22 years old at the time of the initial controversy in 2010. As they're now adult, the original issue over our use of a minor (which is why the page was protected ten years ago, as well as the cyberbullying page) is irrelevant, as is the [[WP:BLP|E]], as there have been more recent claims which establish notability imo (more recent accusations of sexual assault and being interviewed as part of [[Chris Hansen]]'s YouTube documentary, FBI investigations, etc). Sorry I didn't start a discussion at [[WP:BLP|E]] as I just assumed these rationales had become moot, though I'll admit I'm not an expert on the subject.
:~ I would argue that the cyberbullying page should definitely have the nickname "Jessi Slaughter" in (as this was the name they were notable by at the time, and all the news articles discussing the controversy use it), as well as their post-transition name as this is mentioned for the most recent allegations. Maybe the birthname redirect or even mention in the article isn't necessary, but I think it aids anyone who'd otherwise think Slaughter is Damien's last name now. --[[User:Bangalamania|Bangalamania]] [[User talk:Bangalamania|talk]] 02:10, 14 February 2021 (UTC)
